

KNIGHT AND LADY

A knight and a lady
Went riding one day
Far into the forest
Away, away.

“Fair knight,” said the lady,
“I pray, have a care.
This forest is evil:
Beware, beware!”

A fiery red dragon
They spied on the grass
The lady wept sorely,
“Alas! Alas!”

The knight slew the dragon,
The lady was a gay:
They rode on together,
Away, away.
